

Overall I think you are doing great.

The main problem I see with your website is the text sizing. Both the nav links and the text in the body are small and hard to read.

On the schedule and events page the google calendar is too small on desktop resolutions.

on line 15 of your HTML your closing a tag `` needs to go after the closing h1 tag `</h1>`

You don't need .index.html on all of your HTML files, only the homepage needs to be called index.html the other pages can just be called training.html and schedule.html etc.

I also think we are supposed to make CSS variables for the colors we use.

On your gallery tab on all resolutions the last images bleed over the edge of your div
